FEBRUARY 5, 2012

GBC RESOLUTIONS 1989

1. (EFFECTIVE JAN 15, 1989) That, after all reasonable attempts to save the ISKCON Miami Beach property have failed, the GBC body regretfully gives its approval for the sale of the property and the moving of the deities to another suitable location.

2. (EFFECTIVE FEB. 20, 1989) That a devotee in ISKCON cannot be married again by Vaishnava fire sacrifice if the previous marriage is ended by legal divorce, unless the local authorities (Temple President, GBC, etc.) where the divorce occurred, and the spiritual master(s) concerned give their consent that there is an authorized Krishna conscious basis for the fire sacrifice.

3. (EFFECTIVE FEB. 20, 1989) That the guru approval procedures be modified to state that after a guru candidate is approved by a local council (as per resolution #22, page 139), his name shall be sent to the Corresponding Secretary of the GBC, who, after verifying that the GBC approved procedures have been observed, will send to all GBC members. If three GBC members express serious doubts in writing to the Corresponding Secretary within three months of the date of notification, the candidates shall not accept the role of initiating guru, and his case shall be considered at the next annual general meeting of the GBC. The Corresponding Secretary shall inform the chairman of the concerned council of the doubts or absence of doubts regarding the candidate. In the event that three or more GBC men did express their doubts within the three month period, and then any of these GBC members subsequently withdraw their doubts in writing, thus bringing the number of such GBC members to less than three, the guru candidate may then take up the role of initiating guru. The Corresponding Secretary shall monitor this program and inform the concerned parties as necessary.

4. (EFFECTIVE FEB. 20, 1989) That it is recommended that Istagosthi be convened by the Continental GBC Committees for North America, Europe, and India each year, between thirty and ninety days prior to the International GBC meeting (India may hold their meeting during the month of Kartika), with all GBC men in those areas, interested ISKCON managers and sannyasis of the Continent, and other senior devotees upon invitation, to hear formal reports on the year's progress from continental GBC zonal secretaries and other leaders; and to discuss the following topics:

1. Continental representation on the International GBC;
2. Continental preaching strategies;
3. Continental BBT related issues;
4. Continental zonal assignment changes (if temples want to be reassigned to another zone);
5. Other pertinent issues.

Participants should be invited to prepare papers on any of the above topics for discussion. Papers on any conclusions of discussions may be commissioned by the Istagosthi and distributed as seen fit.

5. (EFFECTIVE FEB. 20, 1989) Whereas, the existing Provisional Order which states that the worship of Srila Prabhupada at his samadhi shall be shared by the individual GBC men on a rotating basis has proven to present a hardship upon some GBC men such that the Order has not been regularly followed, it shall be resolved that said Provisional Order be repealed. 79. That no ISKCON temple or other entity shall sell, give away, or otherwise permanently dispose of any original works of art which were created to illustrate Srila Prabhupada's (or other BBT) books. If temples wish to transfer ownership of these artworks, they must do so to another ISKCON temple or to the Bhaktivedanta Book Trust.

80. That all GBC mandated committees shall file copies of the minutes of all meetings with the Executive Committee via the Corresponding Secretary. Auxiliary organizations, such as the International BBT and MVT are requested to do the same.

81. That the GBC adopt the following system as the official method of book review and approval:

1. All GBC members, and other senior devotees the GBC approves, are authorized to review and approve literature for ISKCON devotees. A smaller group selected by the GBC, known as the ISKCON Review Board, will administer the system. The Review Board shall consist of a chairman, plus specialists in the following areas: philosophy and religion, science, children's literature. Sanskrit translations, and Bengali translations.

2. An author will approach the GBC member, or other authorized reviewer of his choice and request him to review his work. No reviewer is required to review a work if he does not wish to. The ISKCON Review Board will provide each reviewer with a set of standards to use as a guide.

[Note: Approved guidelines are attached.]

3. If the reviewer unconditionally approves the work, he will provide the author with a "Letter of Approval." The uthor will then approach two other qualified reviewers and obtain letters from them stating that they have "no objection" to the publication of the work, or the Letter of Approval. The author will then send copies of the work, the Letter of Approval, and the No Objection statements to the appropriate specialist (or the chairman in case of miscellaneous literature) of the ISKCON Review Board. If the author is not informed to the contrary by the chairman or specialist within 45 days, he may publish his work with a statement in the front-matter (or otherwise advertise the approval) that he has followed the authorized process for review and the content of his work has been approved by the specific reviewer. (The exact wording of this statement should be worked out by the Review Board.) If the chairman or specialist disapproves, the ISKCON Review Board, as a body, must make the final determination.

4. If a reviewer does not feel that a work deserves approval, he should inform the author of his reasons for rejecting the work. Since authors may approach more than one reviewer for approval, copies of letters denying approval must be sent to the chairman of the Review Board, or the appropriate specialist, so he will be aware that there may be problems with specific works.

5. Whenever reviewers, or the Review Board, feel that a work would be acceptable if it were modified, they will inform the author of what kind of improvements are required in order to obtain approval. In some cases, when an author has not been able to fulfill the normal requirements, the Review Board may grant conditional approval, stating that the work may be appropriate for use by certain readers, or under certain conditions.

6. The Review Board may decide that it wants to review works which have not been submitted for approval. In such cases, it will first request the author to submit his work in the normal fashion. If the author does not wish to submit his work, the Review Board may assign someone to review it anyway, and publish the results of the review.

7. The ISKCON Review Board has the right to rescind prior approvals at any time. Its reasons for doing so may include: improved or additional criteria, changes in the review procedures, changing social or other conditions in and around ISKCON, legitimate complaints or concerns of which the Review Board had not been aware, or any other cogent reasons that necessitate re-examination of a work. The Board may also cancel the right of a specific reviewer to grant approvals if it finds his approvals are defective. A decision of the Review Board may be overruled by a provisional order of the GBC.

8. At least once a year, the Review Board will publish and provide to all temples the results of its work, listing:

- Approved works to date, with the names of the approving reviewers.
- Works submitted, but not yet approved.
- Works rejected by three or more reviewers, or the Review Board, along with an explanation of why each work did not receive approval.
- Works which are conditionally approved, with explanations.

In order to make ISKCON's positions on various reading materials widely available to the ISKCON public, the Review Board should also publicize its findings and reviews in ISKCON publications, such as "ISKCON World Review."

9. The Review Board should establish whatever additional procedures are necessary to carry out the spirit of this proposal.
